

Tips to Get the Most From Your Wedding Cinematography

#1 - Stay on Schedule

One of the most important things you can do is stay on schedule. When things get behind schedule we are sometimes forced to miss opportunities to film important content. That takes away from your film's potential.

#2 - Control Your Guests

Guests can be one of the biggest hinderances in getting the shots we need. Consider roping chairs along the center aisle to keep guests out of the aisle during the ceremony. Also, consider having an 'unplugged' ceremony or having your officiant request that guests remain in their seats.

#3 - Provide Content

We can only film what is available to us. Providing us with more content is a great way to enhance your film. It can be something as grand as having fireworks or a dance performance at the reception, or something as simple (yet powerful) as writing personal vows to each other or delivering letters or gifts earlier in the day. Also, consider doing a first look with each other.

#4 - Consider the Lighting

Cinematography requires light. So consider the lighting when you're preparing your ceremony and reception designs. This applies to where you are getting ready as well. If you would like our input on lighting please just ask us.

#5 - Relax and Have Fun!

This is your wedding day. Have fun and enjoy yourself. Smile a lot. Laugh a lot. Cry happy tears. Don't sweat the small stuff. If you're having the time of your life you'll look like it in your film.
